Death Is the Penalty!

Czechs Declare Martial Law

PRAGUE, Sept. 13 (INS)—President Eduard Benes' government proclaimed a state of emergency—modified martial law—in eight Czechoslovak departments today in an effort to halt widespread Sudeten disorders which cost a reported eight to eleven lives, including those of five Henleinists.

CHEERS FOR HITLER—Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler responds to cheers of multitude as he arrives at Nurnberg, Germany, for the 10th annual Congress of the Nazi party. In his speech Hitler hedged from high-and-mighty war stand, but insisted the Nazis would protect the Sudetens in Czechoslovakia.

Minister of the Interior Josef Cerny, however, said only four Sudetens and three Czechs had been killed and three seriously wounded since last night.

The eight department affected are Egar, Neudeck, Proznec, Ellbogen, Kagen, Carlsbad, Falkenau and Kruma.

Tanks from a nearby garrison rumbled through the streets of Eger, less than ten miles from the German border, where frenzied celebrations took place following Hitler's Nurnberg speech.

DEATH IS PENALTY

The government ordered the death penalty for disturbers of the peace in the eight districts after three persons were killed in demonstrations.

The death penalty is to be imposed at the discretion of a commission of four judges.

A unanimous decision by the commission would make death by hanging mandatory within two hours after the sentence was pronounced.

So serious was the situation that Foreign Minister Kamil Krofte postponed his scheduled departure for Geneva to attend the League of Nations assembly session.

BALK HENLEIN PUTSCH

Prague's militant action, according to some sources, was designed to stamp out all possiility of a Henleinist putsch.

Authorities, it was said, ordered an official investigation to ascertain whether Sudeten's plotted to occupy public buildings within the next few days should a plebiscite be refused.

Bans were ordered on all public meetings and demonstrations, indoor and out.

The government broadcast an appeal to the people to remain calm.

At the same time it was learned that Viscount Runciman, British mediator, sent one of his aides, Major Sutton Pratt, to investigate the new incidents, particularly those at Eger and Carlsbad.

Fears were expressed that incidents such as those which occurred throughout the night might provide the spark which could bring German troops across the border to the "rescue of the Henleinists.

The state of emergency permits the Czech government to restrict personal liberty in affected areas and carry out "visits" without warning.

It also permits officials to control correspondence, forbid meetings, prevent publication of newspapers and control the sale, manufacturing and carrying of arms. It also provides for regulation of the use of political party signs.

2 Lynn Girls Rout Intruder In Fist Fight

The girls are 20-year-old Dorothy Eldridge of Eutaw avenue, and her sister, Mildred, 13, pupil at Eastern Junior High Schol.

Teir youngest sister, Phyllis, eight, also an occupant of the bedroom, was thrown to the floor by the prowler in his dash to escape.

Their mother, Mrs. Velma Eldridge, and a brother, Harry, 23, were both hurled aside by the in- from the second-story flat.

According to Lynn police, the marauder clamped his hand over Mildred's mouth when she tried to scream.

Dorothy, they said, was awakened by the scuffle in the dark and rushed to the aid of her sister.

They told police they mauled and scratched the prowler.

Officials Face Purge in Italy

(Copyright, 1938, by International News Service)

ROME, Sept. 13—A purge of "non-Aryans" in Italy's diplomatic service was reported in full swing today following an official announcement that Fulvio Suvich, Italian ambassador to the United States, will not return to his embassy in Washington.

Suvich is believed to be classified as a "non-Aryan" subject to the anti-Semitic decrees propounded by Premier Mussolini because his wife is known to have Jewish blood.

The former ambassador himself has denied that he is Semitic or even partially so.

Many other noted Italian officials slated for the axe includes the name of Ambassador Russo, head of Italy's embassy in Moscow.

Brookline Engineer Held in Ring Theft

Kenneth F. Nash, Brookline engineer, was held in $200 bail today by United States Commissioner Harry N. Guterman for removal to Washington to answer charges of larceny after trust of a $1150 diamond ring from a Washington Jeweler. Bail was furnished.

Nash, also known as "J. Stewart" according to the indictment, admitted his identity in court when the Washington indictment was presented as evidence.

Simmons Graduate Slain in N. Y.

ADAMS, N. Y., Sept. 13 (AP)—Mrs. Barbara Mather Flynn, 28, was found dead today in an upper floor bedroom of her parents' farm home on the Adams-Henderson road. Nearby lay her husband, Arthur E. Flynn, 28, a former state trooper, with bullet wounds in his head.

Flynn was taken to a Watertown hospital where authorities said his condition was "very critical."

District Attorney Carl J. Hynes said the couple had been making their home with Mrs. Flynn's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William A. Mather, and that both were employed by Mather at his feed store in Adams.

Mrs. Flynn was found with two bullet wounds in her head. Hynes said she apparently died instantly.

Flynn was married to the Mather girl in 1931 and resigned from the troop. She was graduated from Simmons College, Boston, Mass., in 1931.

McCann said a .38-caliber pistol was found near Flynn.

Berry Picker, 81, Found by Posse

SEEKONK, Sept. 13—Showing no ill results from a night spent in the woods, Mrs. Mary Britito, 81, cranberry picker, was found by a posse today, 24 hours after she was reported missing from home. She disappeared yesterday after she had left a local cranberry bog complaining of headache.

BIG BOSTON BUS IN HEAD-ON CRASH; 6 DEAD, 14 INJURED

CHARLTON, Sept. 13—Six persons were killed and 14 were injured here today when a New York-to-Boston Greyhound bus and a huge ten-wheel trailer truck crashed head-on at rain-swept Richardson's corner. At least four of the injured were believed to be dying.

The accident, one of the worst in the history of New England highway transportation, occurred in the gray of dawn, as most of the occupants of the bus were sleeping.

Bus Victim On Way Home

Mrs. Margaret Hogan, 65, killed in the Charlton bus crash, was on her way home from Brooklyn, N. Y., where she visited a nephew, Traffic Policeman James Keough, over the week-end.

Mrs. Hogan lived here with her daughter, Mrs. Mary O'Reilly, 71 Hancock street.

Mrs. O'Reilly said she received a telegram from her mother last night, stating she was coming by bus.

The next word Mrs. O'Reilly received was from State police that her mother was among the bus crash dead.

Eye-Witness Story Of Tragic Collision

Following is an eye-witness account of the bus crash at Charlton, as told to the Boston Evening American by Chester Johnson, operator of a bus following the machine involved in the fatal collision:

I was driving the second section of the bus train and was following the bus driven by Operator Dustin at a time distance of 9½ minutes.

The place where the accident occurred is about 15 miles from Worcester and lies in a slight valley between two hills.

As I climbed over the hill and started to go down on the other side, I noticed the lights of Dustin's bus were over on the left side of the road.

Just in that second I heard a terrible rumbling sound and a deafening crash. I stopped my bus about 100 yards from the scene.

I jumped out of my bus. Six of my 38 passengers jumped out with me. The other 30, mostly women and children, stayed in their seats.

We heard the agonizing screams of women inside in the dark.

I first went to the driver's cab and saw Dustin, unconscious and bleeding, slumped over the wheel. I pulled him out and laid him on the side of the road.

In the right-hand rear section of the bus I broke my way through the wreckage and dragged out three bodies.

I was so shocked at the sight that I don't remember whether they were men or women. Anyhow, they were so mangled and their clothes so torn that I don't think I could tell right away.

Then my passengers and I ripped open traveling bags and tore the shirts and dresses of the injured men and women into strips and made bandages and tourniquets to try and staunch flowing blood.

I was in a daze from the sights I saw and I can't remember all the details. Pretty soon the police and doctors came and I sat down by the roadside to recover my senses.

I continued on my way to Boston with only one passenger, Charles Reeks of North Quincy. The other 30 or more passengers were taken to Worcester.

Jim's Condition Good; Father Visits Him Again

ROCHESTER, Minn., Sept. 13 (AP)—President Roosevelt resumed a close watch on the condition of his son, James, today after an impromptu roadside chat in which he pledged he would do everything possible to lift farm prices.

The President visited his eldest son and secretary, a patient at the Mayo clinic, three times. James underwent an operation for a gastric ulcer Sunday and his condition is reported as "satisfactory."

Today's first bulletin on James' condition issued from the clinic said:

"Mr. James Roosevelt has spent a very comfortable night. His condition is satisfactory at this stage of the convalescent period.

"Temperature, 99.6; pulse, 90; respiration and blood pressure normal."

However, hospital attaches said the operation was of such a nature that several days would be necessary to ascertain that he definitely was on the road to recovery.

In between visits to the hospital, the President went for a long drive over rain-sodden dirt roads.

Stephen Early, his secretary, reported that the Chief Executive's car had been slowed to a walking pace by the mire. Finally, Early said, the President decided to stop in front of a farm house.

An elderly farmer who did not give his name, came out and chatted with the President. He discussed agricultural problems for 20 minutes and finally asked point-blank what President Roosevelt planned to do to lift farm prices.

The President gave the farmer his promise he would do everything possible.

The President kept in touch with the elections in Maine and Maryland and with the European situation. But he made this statement which was authorized for direct quotation:

"At this time, Minnesota is not a news source for events in Europe, Maryland or Maine."

During his last call on James last night, Mayo physicians told the President that his son's temperature was only one half point above normal and that his general condition was satisfactory. The President responded he thought James was in grand shape.

College, Churches, To Share in Will

Bequests of $20,000 today were made to Williams College and Congregational societies and churches in the will of the late Rev. Oliver P. Emerson, 93, of Brookline, filed in Dedham Probate Court.

Curley Waits Full 'Truth' in Graves Case

Following the filing by Assistant District Attorney Frederick Doyle of 125 interrogatories in the case of Frederick H. Graves, charged with perjury before the Finance Commission and Judge Frederick W. Fosdick of the Superior Court, former Gov. James M. Curley issued this statement:

"The filing of 125 interrogatories in the case of Frederick H. Graves is another forward step in bringing before the public the conspiracy started and consummated by political parasites who have attempted to destroy the character and achievements of James M. Curley.

"I await with keen interest the immediate determination of the truth. A story which will prove for all time my honesty and integrity and expose forever the pious socialites who prey upon the common people of America with their seemingly of respectability and diabolical intrigue.

"I have every confidence that District Attorney Foley and his able trial assistant, Frederick Doyle, will bring the facts speedily before the people of Massachusetts.

"The opposition, I am certain, will attempt to avoid a trial of Graves by jury but I trust they will seek no such refuge.

"The conspirators, I am advised, are making efforts to prevent the complete unfolding of the facts by the usual legal delays but the people of the Commonwealth must be told of the $15,000 paid to Graves, the promise of protection from arrest and the assistance in business given him by a member of the bar of Massachusetts, a leading Boston industrialist and other big-wigs who conspired to ruin and destroy me and my family."

'Little' Men See Recovery

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 13 (AP)—Self-styled "minute men in business suits" met today in their first annual convention to draft a ten-point "rescue" program.

Dewitt M. Emery, president of the National Small Business Men's Association, predicted the group would adopt a resolution demanding the end of "government meddling and experimentation."

The program was subject to revision but other resolutions demanding "sound money," a balanced national budget and the loosening of Congress from "the President's apron strings" were assured of adoption, Emery said.

The Akron letterhead man, whose six foot six height gained him the title of the "largest little business man in America," founded the group last November by conducting a correspondence membership campaign designed to achieve unified action among small businessmen.

The association board urged the government to "serve notice on all European governments that the United States will take no part in their war madness."

Goering Stricken; Must Take Rest

NUERNBERG, Sept. 13 (INS)—While Chancellor Hitler's momentous speech was being heard by hundreds of thousands of Nazis at the Nurnberg congress, Field Marshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering, Germany's No. 2 Nazi, was ill and lying abed in the nearby village of Feucht.

An official announcement said Goering would need several days of rest.

Bay State Vets To Visit Jimmy

FORT WILLIAM, Ont., Sept. 13—Visits to the bedside of James Roosevelt in Rochester, Minn., were scheduled today for officers of the Massachusetts state department of the American Legion, en route to the national convention in Los Angeles.

The group left today on the last part of their Great Lakes trip and were to debark at Duluth, Minn., for the Twin Cities. At various Lake Superior ports they were heartily greeted by Canadian Legion officials.

Hairpin Story Wins Divorce

She doesn't wear hairpins, and when she found some in the family auto after her husband had been out driving she became suspicious and questioned him. He threw a clock at her, Mrs. Frances Sweeney of Lynn testified in Salem divorce court.

On the strength of this and other stories of cruelty, she got her decree.

One of the charges of Mrs. Olive Hobbe Schmitz of Portsmouth was that she found a lady's ring in her husband's pocket. She was awarded a divorce.

Salvagers Start Work on Wreck

Salvagers today start work on the wreck of the British freighter City of Salisbury, on a ledge near Graves light, in an effort to retrieve 448,000 pounds of raw rubber.

The rubber was worth $35,000 when the Salisbury sank but now because of a jump in the market, is doubled in value.

Defends 'Punch Bag' Exercise

Her colors still unlowered, Mrs. James J. Sullivan of South Boston marched back into Suffolk Court today to fire a few verbal volleys of her own in South Boston's war of the punching bag.

Flanked by sympathetic neighbors she was ready to refute testimony of other neighbors—not so sympathetic—that her bag punching sounded like the rat-a-tat-tat of a machine gun.

Mrs. Sullivan claims her boxing exercise is the cure-all for her arthritis and, like the Revolutionary boys on nearby Breed's Hill, she refuses to quit.

That is, unless Peter Borre, sitting as master, allows a restraining petition sought by Mrs. Emma Kiezis, whose apartment house backs up on the Sullivan yard in East Sixth street.

The "machine gun" testimony was given by one of Mrs. Kiezis' tenants, Miss Helen Barry, a school teacher.

Miss Barry declared the steady bag punching was louder than the noise of 350 children at recess at the Cudworth School, East Boston, where she is a teacher.

The alleged din also was compared favorably with that of street cars, Elevated trains, a locomotive whistle and a steamroller, while Mrs. Sullivan's friends "tut-tutted" from the spectators' benches.

'Model Citizen' Begins Jail Term

Once regarded as the model citizen of Medway, Samuel Norton, 51-year-old bachelor, was in solitary confinement at Charlestown State Prison today.

Norton was sentenced to from three to five years by Judge Harold P. Williams in Norfolk Superior Court after pleading guilty to larceny of $24,000 from the Medway Savings Bank, of which he was treasurer for 16 years.

He was a prominent church and civic worker, and active in fraternal orders.

Ebro River Battle Reaches Stalemate

HENDAYE, France, Sept 13 (AP)—The battle of the Ebro river in northeastern Spain, begun six weeks ago, appeared today to be in a temporary standstill, with the government still holding strategic positions on the west bank.

Insurgent troops, unable to dislodge militiamen from their trenches, continued pounding the government lines with artillery.

Babson Blames Roosevelt For Jobless Army

"President Roosevelt has done nothing to eliminate the CAUSES of unemployment."

Thus declared Roger W. Babson, noted statistician, before the Executives' Club of the Boston Chamber of Commerce at a noon meeting today.

E. C. Johnson, president of the club and chairman of the "Sales Mean Jobs" crusade committee, presided.

"We must depend upon public opinion and better business conditions for returning to work," Babson declared.

"I feel that Mr. Johnson and his associates are answering this question in connection with their 'Sales Mean Jobs' campaign. Statistics indicate quite clearly that the people of this country have gotten in an inferiority complex due to politics, labor unions and other disturbing factors."

Mr. Babson blamed unemployment upon six things—first, women in industry while men are refusing to take their places as workers in the home"; second, labor unions "which are forcing employers to install automatic machinery, throwing more out of work"; third, loss of foreign trade; furth, high school instruction "which is creating the desire for an easy life instead of a life of industry and sacrifice"; fifth, "foolish legislation," and sixth, the "constantly widening breach between the birth rate of th eemploying and the wage earning strains."

Offers Son Alibi In Child Slaying

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., Sept. 13—Branding her son's alleged murder confession the "mutterings of a man under influence of liquor," an 81-year-old mother today stood ready to give an alibi for Herbert Willis Sprague, accused as the slayer of little Barbara Driscoll.

"That 'confession' was false—it came from the lips of a man whose mind was befogged by drink" she said.

"I can convince any jury that his coat—the one the police say is bloodstained—was given to him from my own hands the day after that little girl was killed."

These words came from Sprague's mother in Portland, Me., even while police started a double-check on each statement made by the itinerant barber following his purported confession Sunday of the slaying of eight-year-old Barbara.

His arrest resulted from the suspicions of Vena Stevens, an oyster house employe who served him chowder on Saturday night. When Sprague ate nervously, then left without finishing his food, she insisted that John Perkins, a fellow employe, notify the police.

Sprague, blinking his red rheumy eyes in apparent unconcern about the murder charge against him, today sat quietly in his cell in Rockingham County Jail.

The mother's statement was in corroboration of the assertion of Winfield Sprague, brother of the accused man, that the barber was in Portland on Labor Day. The Driscoll girl died the previous night.

Maryland, Maine Rebuke F.D.R.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13 (INS)—The New Deal was set back hard on its heels today in two directions and in a manner which the most partisan will find hard to laugh off.

The Republicans of rockbound Maine attended to the first setback by re-electing their governor and three incumbent Republican congressmen.

But the real jar to the New Deal was furnished by Maryland Democrats, next door to the capital, who convincingly renominated conservative Senator Millard E. Tydings, who was listed as the No. 1 man on the New Deal elimination list.

BALTIMORE, Sept. 13 (AP)—Senator Millard E. Tydings, conservative Democrat, whose bid for a third term renomination was opposed by President Roosevelt, claimed a "sweeping victory" today on the basis of partial returns from yesterday's primary election.

Returns from 726 of the state's 888 precincts gave Tydings 109,308 votes, Representative David J. J. Lewis, "100 per cent New Dealer," backed by the President, 78,146.

While the trend was for Tydings in four of the Baltimore's six districts, even in the eastern shore and southern Maryland counties through which the President passed when he came into Maryland to speak for Lewis on Labor Day, there still was the matter of convention votes to be considered, for the nomination is made in convention.

Each of Baltimore city's legislative districts and the 23 counties has the same number of convention votes, as it has members of the legislature, the blocs ranging from three to seven.

O'Conor led Mayor Howard W. Jackson of Baltimore 90,438 to 68,854 in returns from 602 polling places, with only one city precinct missing.

Governor Nice, opposed by former State Senator Harry T. Phoebus, seemed assured of renomination as returns from 654 precincts showed: Nice, 35,148; Phoebus, 5649.

Eire Considering Measures for War

DUBLIN, Sept. 13 (INS)—The government of Eire is considering measures "which might become necessary" in the event of a European war, it was announced officially today.

Character of the contemplated measures was not indicated.

Maine Sweep Buries Dealers

PORTLAND, Me., Sept. 13 (AP)—A Roosevelt administration effort to dent Maine's Republican solid front failed today as Republican Governor Lewis O. Barrows and three Republican U. S. representatives, all of whom had embraced the Townsend plan, won clear-cut victories.

In the first of the 1938 elections, Barrows, sharp critic of the Roosevelt administration, rolled up a 17,000 vote margin over his Democratic predecessor, Louis J. Brann, the party's ablest vote-getter. Brann's third-term bid was supported by National Democratic Chairman James A. Farley.

Returns in 620 of 629 precincts gave:

Barrows	156,511
Brann	139,518

The incumbent Republicans in Congress, all endorsed by Dr. Francis E. Townsend and his pension plan organization, won easy victories.

The summary:

Second district—208 precincts out of 212 gave Smith (R.) 55,435, Dubord (D.) 46,965.

Third district—267 precincts out of 271 give Brewster (R.) 51,236, Roberts (D.) 29,712.

Representative Clyde H. Smith's 2d district defeat of F. Harold Dubord, Democratic national committeeman whose New Deal loyalty Farley had particularly commended, caused considerable comment.

90,000 Ballot At N. H. Polls

CONCORD, N. H., Sept. 13—More than 90,000 voters were parading to the polls today to register their preferences in the biggest primary ever held.

Most interest centered in the battle between Governor Francis P. Murphy, candidate for re-nomination, and Atty. Gen. Thomas P. Chaney.

In the closing days of the campaign, the men have attacked each other bitterly.

In the senatorial fight, Congressman C. W. Tobey is opposed by former State Senator Bliss A. Carter.

In the Second Congressional District, State Representative Foster Stearns of Hancock is claiming the lead in a field of nine. The Townsend Plan is an issue in that district, as it is generally in rural New Hampshire.

Curley Lashes Hurley Dismissals in Winter

By ALFRED D. WHELTON

Governor Hurley today was branded as a "Simon Legree" by former-Governor Curley as the four candidates for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination hurled new charges at each other in state-wide rallies.

Curley placed the "Simon Legree" brand on the Governor in speeches on the North Shore where voters were told that 31,000 laborers had been discharged from state service in the dead of winter.

Lieutenant-Governor Francis E. Kelly invaded Curley's old home district of Roxbury to lodge charges of graft, corruption and alleged "racketeering" in connection with the Boston Elevated.

Kelly declared that public trustees of the Elevated are "political satellites" of the Governor and that the present laws regulating the railway system were secured by "manipulation of the Legislature."

Striking back at Curley's and Kelly's charges of inactivity, Governor Hurley declared in Fall River, Taunton and New Bedford that he had brought new industries to Massachusetts. He cited his success in negotiations in bringing the Firestone Tire and Rubber Company plant to Fall River.

Former Congressman Richard M Russell received the endorsement of ex-United States Senator Marcus Coolidge, who declared that Russell is the only Democrat who can win the governorship if nominated.

He pointed out that Russell was the only Democrat to ever carry the 9th congressional district and that he polled 3400 more votes in 1936 in that district than did Governor Hurley.

Leverett Saltonstall, candidate for the Republican nomination, told audiences in Haverhill, Saugus and Swampscott that many Democrats have pledged him their support in the election because of "dissatisfaction with the present administration."

Present old age pension allowances are no higher than the cost of a dollar a day for boarding a dog in a hospital, Frederick Butler of Andover pointed out today in a speech on depauperizing old age pensions. Butler, Republican candidate for governor, said if it costs $30 a month to board a dog, public officials should not expect a man to support a family on the same amount.

Charles A. Burns, president of the Boston Central Labor Union, today issued a statement of endorsement to the candidacy of Lieutenant-Governor Kelly for governor.

"At no time has Francis E. Kelly attempted to exploit labor or use trade unionists to further his own ends," Burns said.

Sheriff John A. Keliher of Suffolk county announced today that confidential reports from all sections of the county indicate that he will win renomination by at least 20,000 votes. City Councillor John F. Dowd, opponent of the veteran sheriff, branded Keliher as a sheriff in name only and added that the contest was not against Keliher as a man but against "the invisible group behind him."

School Committeeman John b. Barry of Everett announced today that he had received encouraging reports from all sections of the statae in his campaign against State Auditor Thomas H. Buckley. Barry is aided in his campaign by four daughters.

Lowell Ballot Error Revealed Too Late

LOWELL, Sept. 13—Despite protests over a mistake in the designation of a candidate on the local state primaries ballot, the Lowell election commission was notified today the error cannot be corrected before the polls open next Tuesday.

Henry V. Charbonneau, seeking Republican nomination as representative, is listed as "present city solicitor of Lowell," although he last held the post in 1931.

George to Fight Deal 'Arrogance'

ATLANTA, Sept. 13 (AP)—Senator Walter F. George climaxed his stump-speaking drive for renomination here today with a pledge to fight "arrogant, intolerable bureaucracy assuming to control human beings from the cradle to the grave."

His two opponents, New Dealer Lawrence S. Camp and former Governor Eugene Talmadge, carried out full speaking schedules.

Plumley Faces Vermont Battle

MONTPELIER, Vt., Sept. 13—Charles A. Plumley, Vermont's only congressman, faced the stiffest fight of his career in today's primaries.

His opponent was Jack Crowley, Rutland lawyer, former state's attorney for Rutland county, and past national commander of the American Legion.

Governor George J. Aiken seeks a second term, pointing to his record. Elisha Goodsell, who opposes him, says he has been around too long.

Hines 'Deal' Hinted

Dewey May Drop Charges

By EDWIN C. HILL
International News Service Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK, Sept. 13 — The whole town is boiling today over the abrupt end of the Hines trial because of a 14-word question addressed to a defense witness after 4600 pages of testimony tending, in the prosecution's opinion, to implicate James J. Hines with the Schultz policy racket as its protector.

The boiling is in the sense of excited gos ; as to what political considerations may have entered into the stunning result.

The suggestion of a political connection with the Hines case—specifically that District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey tried to get Hines to further his ambition to become the Republican candidate for governor—was tossed into the amazing case by Defense Counsel Lloyd Stryker not only before the trial began, but also immediately after Justice Pecora threw the case out late yesterday.

DEWEY IS WRATHY

After Justice Pecora's ruling, Stryker asked the court to defer selecting a date for a new trial "until after the coming political campaign."

Justice Pecora brushed that request aside with the remark that the district attorney had as yet made no application for a new trial.

Dewey, seething with resentment and anger not only over the decision itself, but because of certain comments touching himself which Justice Pecora had made, was not in the courtroom when Stryker made that request.

But his assistant, Sol Gelb, said the district attorney would make his request for a new trial when he saw fit.

There is nothing on the record to prove that Justice Pecora's decision was based on any political considerations, or that Dewey's prosecution of Hines sprang from any desire to further his personal political ambitions.

MAY DROP CASE

But the suggestions, however they may have passed by either judge or prosecutor, entered into the atmosphere of the case and certainly into public comment.

Whether or not Hines will be tried again remains to be seen. He walked out of court still unconvicted and still under indictment. His bail of $20,000 is continued. It would seem the court's expectation is that a new trial will be requested.

Dewey may not feel that way about it. He may conceivably hold that the inherent difficulties of a second prosecution are such as to make it impractical.

Seldom, indeed, does a great criminal case terminate with such paralyzing suddenness or in such an atmosphere of tenseness and gossip.

A governor may have been made or unmade by the ruling which came like a thunderclap.

WHAT OF DEWEY'S FATE?

Will Dewey's defeat, in failing to get the case even before the jury, militate against his remarkable reputation as a successful prosecutor of criminals—the reputation which has been the basis of suggestions that he would make an ideal Republican candidate for governor in the November election?

Or, will it in the public mind still further add luster to that reputation even though his immediate object in this case fell short of its purpose?

It is suggested today, that if Dewey decides to put Hines on trial again, he will apply to the chief justice of the appellate division, Francis Martin, to appoint one of 28 other Supreme Court justices than Pecora to preside.

Will Dewey now drop the Hines case as useless for further action, lost motion and unnecessary waste of the taxpayers' money, and go on to fight the issue out before the people generally, or will he go to bat again in "the People vs. Hines?"

Brockton Fair Thrills Crowds

BROCKTON, Sept. 13—All roads lead to Brockton Fair grounds again today as the annual exhibition went into its third day with attendance figures far ahead of those of recent years.

More than 30,000 children were thrilled by exhibitions of "Lucky" Teter and his daring automobilists.

Other headliners, with especial appeal for grownups, were beautiful Sally Rand and Paul Whiteman and his famous orchestra.

Perhaps the calmest of all who watched the death-defying automobile stunts is Mrs. "Lucky" Teter, who daily goes out to kiss her husband before his performance.

This, she explained, she did when, as a bride, she first saw her husband go through his daredevil paces.

Dewey Bolsters Hines Charges

NEW YORK, Sept. 13 (INS)—Quietly but grimly, District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey today moved to strengthen his indictment against James J. ("Jimmy") Hines and bring the Tammany leader to trial again as soon as possible.

Dewey's office began issuing subpoenas for grand jury appearances in the Hines policy-racketeering case. The subpoena servers were reported swarming over Harlem, where the "Dutch" Schultz mob once ran the racket on a $20,000,000-a-year scale.

The "racket busting" prosecutor apparently was undismayed by Judge Ferdinand Pecora's action in declaring the Hines case a mistrial. It was believed he intends to seek a stronger indictment, charging the defendant Hines additionally with "obstructing justice."

Hines was at liberty under $20,000 bail.

JITTERBUGS, give ear! Here's your chance to swing it! Benny Goodman, top, battles Rudy Vallee, in music jamboree of "swing" versus "straight" at the Boston Garden, Oct. 24, for the Evening American's annual basket fund. Rudy will be there to cater to harmony lovers.

1st Jitterbug Test Tonight

They're off in the jitterbug tournament! The first preliminary contest is on tonight at Brockton Fair. Paul Whiteman, who knows quite a little about music himself, will be there to judge the dancers.

This and all the other preliminaries will be leading up to the grand Swing versus Straight Dancing battle in Boston Garden the night of October 24.

It is sponsored by the Boston Evening American, to decide the relative popularity of dancing to swing and dancing to melody, and to raise money for the Christmas Basket Fund.

The contenders:

Rudy Vallee and his Connecticut Yankees, demonstrating straight harmony, and located at one corner of the stage.

Benny Goodman beating the air with his baton as he and his gang show just what swing can be.

DANCING 6 HOURS

October 24 will be the biggest night in history for dance addicts and those who merely like to watch it.

There will be six hours of dancing. If you like swing, you take the floor when Goodman's men are at it; if you like harmony, you wait for Mr. Vallee to start waving his musicians into action.

Just in case the rival bands exhaust each other and have to rest a few minutes between pieces, Harry Marshard's band will be in a neutral corner, ready to leap to the rescue with either kind of dance music.

In connection with the battle of the bands will be the finals in the jitterbug contest.

The best jitterbug will be given

SWING singing as done only by Martha Tilton, above, will be an added attraction at Evening American's basket fund music jamboree in the Boston Garden, Oct. 24. Caryl Gould, another star chanteuse, will be heard with Vallee's band.

Socialite Mother Of Jay Gould Killed by Fumes

NEW YORK, Sept. 13 (AP)—Mrs. Harold C. Strotz, 49, socially prominent mother of young Jay Gould, the great grandson of the famous railroad builder of the 19th century, died today in her Park avenue apartment of illuminating gas poisoning.

Emergency rescue crews, called when she was found unconscious in the kitchen with gas, the police said, pouring from five jets, had worked vainly for more than four hours to save her life.

Police officers entering the apartment said gas was escaping from five open jets of a kitchen range.

A sealed note addressed "To Jay" was found, but its contents were not made public. Young Gould was understood to be in Hollywood, Calif.

Mrs. Strotz, who was lying on the kitchen floor of the seven room apartment, was found by her husband, who summoned Dr. Michael Bruck, a physician living in the same building.

Strotz carried her from the gas-filled kitchen into an adjoining bedroom. Patrolmen set to work, pending the arrival of an emergency squad, in an attempt to revive her by artificial respiration.

PARTIALLY REVIVED

Through the combined efforts of the police and a gas company emergency crew, Mrs. Strotz was revived partially.

It was said at the apartment house that she and her husband had returned only yesterday from California.

Mrs. Strotz, before her marriage to the late Jay Gould—who was the grandson of the 19th century railroad builder and ranking court tennis player—was Anne D. Graham. Her first husband died in January, 1935, at the age of 45.

MARRIED IN 1935

Strotz, at the time of his marriage to the former Mrs. Gould, was a Chicago broker. He is the son of the late Charles N. Strotz, who was at one time a vice-president of the American Tobacco Co.

Mrs. Strotz is the daughter of Mrs. Hubert Vos of Newport, R. I., and New York city, and the late Douglass G. Graham. They were married in Hollywood on Oct. 5, 1935.

Rep. Bacon Drops Dead In New York

NEW YORK Sept. 13 (AP)—Representative Robert Low Bacon, (R.), of New York, 54, collapsed and died of a heart attack at the state police barracks at Lake Success, Long Island.

Bacon had attended a political meeting in New York City and was driving back with his wife to their home in Old Westbury when he became ill. Mrs. Bacon ordered the chauffeur to drive into the barracks, seven miles from Old Westbury, and Bacon had been inside only ten minutes when he died.

Bacon had been in Congress since 1923, representing the first New York district, a predominantly Republican constituency.

Born in Boston, he was graduated from Harvard in 1907, worked for two years in the Treasury Department at Washington, and then went into private banking with the firm of Kissel, Kinnicutt and Company until he entered Congress.

There he had been on the House appropriations, merchant marine and fisheries, immigration, library of Congress, insular affairs, census and education committees.

At Harvard he was captain of the varsity crew. He was a brother of Gaspar C. Bacon, former lieutenant-governor of Massachusetts. He was a member of the Republican state committee and a delegate to the Republican national convention of 1920.

Funeral services will be on Thursday morning in the Cathedral of the Incarnation, Garden City, Long Island, according to tentative arrangements made today. Burial will be in Arlington National cemetery.

Bridges, CIO Chief, Freed of Contempt

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 13 (AP)—Superior Judge Edward T. Bishop ruled today that Harry Bridges, West Coast CIO leader, was not in contempt of court when he threatened a maritime strike at Los Angeles harbor during a court fight with the AFL several months ago.

Students 'Pickets' Brave Rainfall

DUDLEY, Sept. 13 (AP)—Children of the northwestern district continued their strike from school today, sitting in the rain on the schoolhouse steps for an hour. They parents said there was little hope for a compromise as long as the school committee insists on keeping the school closed.

Scientists View M. I. T. Man-Made Gale Tests

Winds of hurricane force roared in Cambridge today.

No damage was done—they were machine-made gales in the newly dedicated Wright Brothers Memorial wind tunnel, put in operation at Massachusetts Institute of Technology in the presence of world famous scientists.

Dr. Charles H. Chatfield, research director for the United Aircraft Corporation, described uses of the new wind tunnel to engineers gathered at the fifth international congress of applied mechanics.

With development of stratosphere passenger planes capable of gaining speeds in excess of 400 miles an hour, the wind tunnel experiments will grow increasingly important, he said.

Dr. Chatfield predicted construction of airships streamlined to such a degree that passengers will be accommodated in the wings and body structures practically eliminated.

VANDALS RAID GRAVES

Death Rides Bus in Crash

Victims' Bodies Pinned in Debris

[illegible] Boston.

One man and one woman died after a pencil-like [illegible] against police lines and even [illegible] rescuers were unable to remove their bodies for several hours.

The unidentified dead woman was taken to a funeral parlor.

2 WEDDING RINGS

Police said she was about 40 or 45 years old with dark brown hair and full lips. She wore two wedding rings, a blue coat trimmed with fur, a red sweater and a black house dress.

According to other passengers she spoke with a German accent and had said she was on her way to Newton.

Tattooed on her forearm were initials, apparently "J. C." or "T. C."

The bus involved in the crash was closely followed by another, operated as a second section of the same New York-to-Boston trip.

Chester Jordan, driver of the second bus, was one of the first to organize rescue work.

DRAGS OUT VICTIMS

Aided by residents of the neighborhood and by volunteers from private autos, he dragged Bus Driver Dustin's unconscious form from the wreckage.

Then he forced his way into the interior of the wreckage, pulling out one after another of the screaming, moaning victims.

Meanwhile state police were flying to the scene and eight ambulances were being rushed from surrounding communities.

Every available doctor within a ten-mile area was summoned.

As the victims were extricated from the wreckage and given first aid treatment, they were loaded into the ambulances and sent to hospitals in Southbridge and Worcester.

The first aid had to be administered with such means as were at hand.

Rescuers broke open suitcases and other baggage of the victims and ripped packed garments into bandages to stop some of the worst hurt from bleeding to death before medical treatment could be given them.

More than a score of state troopers were sent from barracks at Holden, Munson and Brookfield.

Motor Vehicles Registrar Frank A. Goodwin ordered an inspector of his department to the scene to investigate the cause of the accident.

SAW DEATH HURTLING ON

Myles Henry, assistant driver of the trailer-truck, was able to give state police his account of the accident after he had been treated at Worcester City Hospital. He said:

"We were going along in second speed, not more than 10 or 15 miles an hour.

"I saw the lights of the bus coming down the hill toward us. It looked to me as if the bus was making pretty fast time.

"Then, all of a sudden, the bus seemed to be sliding sideways, with its lights turning into the woods.

"It was right on top of us, with no way out of a smashup. Next thing I knew I was being taken to the hospital."

BOSTON-OWNED TRUCK

The truck was one operated by the Jenkins Transportation company of Boston, according to authorities.

It was a combined tractor and trailer, with a heavy steam shovel on the trailer platform.

Fire departments from surrounding communities sped to the scene of the crash and firemen were active in rescue work.

There was no explosion or blaze, however, although gasoline from smashed tanks drenched the wreckage and the highway.

The bus was thrown across the highway by the crash, blocking traffic in both directions.

Albert Roscoe of Medford, one of those killed, was business manager of the Massachusetts Bible Society, a position he had held for 40 years.

He and Mrs. Roscoe, who was also killed, had been visiting a son, Albert, Jr., in Pittsburgh.

WITH JOE DOAKES and his girl things aren't so hot. Work hasn't been regular, and wherever you look there's plenty of trouble. They've been pushed around a lot, and they're bewildered because things just don't seem to add up anymore.

"Come on, Marge, let's go to the movies!"

Once inside the motion picture theatre everything is changed for them. There Joe Doakes is boss. He has paid his money and what he says goes.

The whole world is brought to them, while Joe holds his girl's hand and sits back in enjoyment.

Maybe it's a hot swing band they want. The movies have searched the dance spots and brought it to them. Perhaps they want a swell adventure story,—Khyber Pass, Bengal Lancers and all that. The movies have it. Or a homely, touching story of everyday folks. There it is, and Joe and the girl friend have a grand time.

Whatever they want, the movies get it for them. Cameramen go into darkest Africa or wander over the bleak Arctic to get authentic settings.

The writers of the brightest comedies take them into the drawing rooms of the wealthy (and, boy, are they drawing rooms!)

The best dance teams in the world dance before their eyes and Joe feels all feet, while Marge almost swoons. And, if by any chance, it's love, they want...

Don't fool yourself—the entertainment of Joe and Marge is the movies' job, and the movies are doing that job extremely well.

Joe and Marge are [illegible] in what is being shown tonight at the Bijou, but the Motion Picture Industry is intent on entertaining the millions of Joes and Marges and their families in thousands of Bijou theatres from Broadway to Bombay.

To accomplish this the best authors are spinning their stories for Hollywood. The best dramatists are building their plots. The finest actors and actresses of our time give their talents—the greatest composers of today and yesterday, from melodies London, Paris, New York—the whole world—offer up their best to the movies, so that you, and you, and you may be entertained.

And around these creative artists has been placed a technical staff which is the marvel of an age. Camera work that shows you a bucket being burned; a that sound that gives you the whisper of a little child... the croon of a Crosby... the thrilling top notes of a MacDonald, [illegible] color that paints the world with the brush of the Master Artist. All of these conspire to make the Movies entertain you.

Thus it is that "Snow White" comes to life before the eyes of enraptured millions. Thus it is that Chicago falls crashing to the ground a generation after the great fire. Paul Muni as "Emile Zola" teaches the world the depths to which persecution can go—Frank Capra makes a nation laugh at the plight of a nice young couple thumbing a ride. Capt. Bligh again strides the deck of the mutinous Bounty and the Hurricane devastates a South Sea isle.

It is because of the movies that Jackie Cooper and Deanna Durbin have become everybody's ideal of a fine American boy and girl, and it is from the screen that Shirley Temple climbs into the laps and hearts of all mankind.

Pictures have come over their long road by trial and error until today they stand as one of the world's most important institutions—the beloved property of everybody—to criticize for their shortcomings, to accept and to cherish for their many, many virtues.

Swing King Benny Goodman's Life Story on Screen

PARAMOUNT TO STAR BAND

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Motion Picture Editor International News Service

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 13. Hitler's speech caused considerable excitement at Hollywood today. Work on "Dawn Patrol" at Warner Brothers, which has one more week to go, is being hurried with orders that the company work at night in order to finish the picture as soon as possible.

Several who are engaged in the military reserve while Darryl F. Zanuck is in London, including Niven, the Earl of Warwick, Michael Brandon and Merwin Gerard, have left the lot. Basil Rathbone, Lyn Harding and Donald Crisp are working in the picture. Should England decide to mobilize, they will be called to colors immediately.

Warner Brothers will have to secure other players to replace them.

Errol Flynn, who is playing the lead in "Dawn Patrol," is a member of the Australian naval reserve and would have to report for duty if England should declare war on Germany. Flynn is not only a member of the reserve but is a lieutenant.

Other members of the cast who are subject to call because they are British subjects are Barry Fitzgerald and Melville Cooper.

Benny Goodman, swing music king, is the latest name to be mentioned for the current starring craze. He is said to be in conversation with Sol Lesser, Darryl Zanuck's associate producer, for the life story of Goodman, starring Benny himself. Goodman has a unique background and has created a group of fans who are as rabid as any that ever followed a band leader.

Lesser is said to have approached Goodman with the idea of making a picture of his life, but Goodman is reported to have refused, saying that he wanted to wait a few years before he would consider it.

Perhaps the explanation may be that Goodman is in the midst of a contest in the Hollywood Reporter, with a staff of writers and critics, to find a successor to Ben Bernie as the "King of Swing."

"Episodes," one of the better Viennese films bought by Warners long before Hitler took over Austria, is being readied for production. Flora Robson, Irene Hervey, Jeffrey Lynn will share top billing with Claude Rains and Lee Patrick.

A Jane Or Two. Ann Sothern made up and all look her part, perhaps. The explanation now suggested is that the publicity office contests

'Hellzapoppin' Daffy; Packed With Talent

By EDWIN A. LAHEY

Boy, did we have fun! The Boston cops all night were getting reports that people were ... from the lobby. It turned out, however, that the nuts on the loose were only Ole Olsen and Chic Johnson. The cops were advised by counsel for ... that Olsen and Johnson should have been committed years ago, but that the statute of ... had run on them.

The reason for all this was the opening at the Shubert last night of these daffodils' show called "Hellzapoppin." The most serious criticism that can be leveled at it is that the nuts in charge were not enough on the stage.

The show is as daffy as you would expect Olsen and Johnson to make it. One suspects that they took a couple of days off in New York just to find every good vaudeville act that was at liberty and put them to work. The show is too crowded with talent, which probably makes it the best buy that has come down the pike in a long time.

To repeat, the only thing wrong with Hellzapoppin is that there's too little of Olsen and Johnson. Maybe they are conducting their own WPA project for the theater (if so, ... to remember that they become ... in their own individual daffiness, not on that of others.

Some Massachusetts political candidate could well adopt this as a program:

DROP THAT GUN

The Editor Says:

Another European war would indeed be an ACT OF MADNESS.

And all the SANITY there is in Europe may be needed to avert such an act.

If sanity fails "over there," and war occurs, then THIS NATION will need to exert all its SANITY.

Nothing but sheer madness will ever again embroil AMERICA on European battlefields.

A POWERFUL FORCE for recovery will be National Demonstration Week to be observed throughout New England and the rest of the nation beginning next Monday. This movement deserves and will GET the interested attention of the public.

The objective is to utilize the widespread retailing structure of the country as a NATIONAL FORCE to encourage and restore buying confidence.

There is an unlimited opportunity to get a force of tremendous power behind the recovery movement by this means.

The movement of goods over retail counters is the biggest and most important business in this country.

It is in the hands of a vast number of individual enterprises, many of them small and employing relatively few people, but in the aggregate it is probably the BIGGEST EMPLOYER OF PEOPLE IN THE COUNTRY.

As Lew Hahn, general secretary of the National Retail Dry Goods Association, sponsor of National Retail Demonstration Week, says:

"The American business public is the best that any nation has ever had. The public likes to buy things, and this demonstration means that we must learn to do a little better than it has ever been done before."

Mr. Hahn has put his finger on a great TRUTH.

Get the people BUYING AGAIN and the people will GO BACK TO WORK, and the nation will PRODUCE AND PROSPER.

BOSTON BUSINESS MEN [illegible] of the nation. [illegible] Boston's when starting boys are trained to come for help and guidance.

The aim is to enable our sons and young brothers to discover their latent abilities and to make the most of their natural talents.

Mr. Donald E. Wilson, chairman of the executive committee which includes officials of the city's stores, banks, insurance companies and leading business establishments, tells us:

"Many of our older boys feel they are being cheated by life because of the small orbits in which they move. They know no body worth while, nobody who can benefit them, either socially or economically. We propose to broaden their contacts, putting them in touch with leaders in the business world."

This is real democracy.

Laying the cornerstone of the new $20,000 Northern Norfolk District Courthouse, Judge Sanborn smashed precedent and amazed spectators by uttering not a single word.

He had been invited to wield the trowel, and that is exactly what he did.

When the judge's biography is written, at least a full chapter ought to be given to the wordless cornerstone ceremony. It might inspire other officials to spare audiences by saying less.

A Major Disaster In World History

By EDWIN C. HILL

THE TIME CAPSULE made of [illegible] at the New York World's Fair grounds to tell future ages about our civilization. The new invention by which this newspaper page may be condensed to something like the bulk of an aspirin tablet, thereby [illegible] when needed will tell them how our civilization [illegible] of any future age.

I suppose they could have condensed the entire library of Alexandria in a few of these seven-foot time-resisting capsules. The burning of the library of 700,000 volumes by command of Theodosius in 389 A. D. was a major disaster of history.

WITH Rome and Antioch, Alexandria was one of the noblest cities of antiquity. It was the seat of a great civilization built in the steady cultural advance after the conquest by Alexander the Great in 332 B. C.

The library in the Temple of Serapis, called the "Great Library," to distinguish it from the "Daughter Library," previously destroyed, was unique in that age, the only comprehensive record of a great civilization and a great culture anywhere in the world.

This writer could never get it quite clear as to whether it was Theodosius or the Caliph Omar who was directly responsible for its burning. At any rate, Omar was reported to have said:

"If it agrees with the Koran, it is useless, and if it doesn't it ought to be destroyed."

Zenodotus, one of the Alexandria librarians of great wisdom and learning had a keen zest for knowledge, and he and others of his day pretty clearly understood the spirit of scientific research. Our World's Fair time capsule, doubtless, would supply him with the answers to many questions which baffled the world of his day. But there is one question to which we supply no answer and which, no doubt will be relayed down through many ages to come, perhaps to the end, blowing up an interesting [illegible] speculation [illegible] "What is truth?" Our capsule will not either ask or answer.

Bad Dreams Never Seem to Come True

By DAMON RUNYON

(Copyright, 1938, by King [illegible] Inc.)

BAD DREAMS worry the dickens out of us.

We do not like to have bad dreams ourself and we hate having people tell us of bad dreams they have had about us. We try to console ourself with the old saying "Dreams go by contraries" when the dream is bad, but even then we still worry about them.

We dream of falling off high buildings, or running furiously after trains that we never catch or killing off our best friends and finding ourself in prison. We dream of the daggonedest things you ever heard of. Maybe we ought to go see one of those psych-somethings or at least look up a policy dream book and see what numbers we should play.

We understand that scientists have quite logical explanations for dreams, but we never believed in them for fear it would lessen that our dreams prove that we are abnormal in one way and possibly off our nut.

SO What we do about dreams—that is, bad dreams—is to forget them as quickly as possible, especially the one in which somebody is always chasing us.

We have done a lot of fighting in our dreams, too, and we are invariably the one that is getting belabored. We must be a bad match-maker after we get asleep because we cannot now recall ever having come out on top in a dream battle. Of course, we have never won many fights awake, either.

We agree with the view of some savants that bad dreams may be largely a matter of diet. We have noticed lately that any time we cargo a few pounds of spaghetti and meat balls and go right to bed that we dream of "Roaring Sam" Rosoff, the subway builder, sitting on our stomach working on us with one of his hard rock drills.

SOME incident is always popping up on us in our waking hours that seems mighty familiar in all its details as if it might have happened to us before yet we know very well it never did happen so we say to ourself it will very likely have the identical [illegible] very thing.

We understand [illegible] explained by [illegible] the subconscious [illegible] advised [illegible] theories. We do not [illegible] have some [illegible] dreams and are well but [illegible] scientists themselves [illegible] dreams that they would figure out.

As a kid back in our old home-town of Pueblo we had typhoid fever and our brains were peopled with strange grotesque shapes and it is a curious thing that in later life any time these shapes appeared again in our dreams it was a [illegible] that we were going to be ill, but we now consider that a handy sort of dream because it sends us tearing to the doctor, without waiting for the illness to take hold.

Then there was the time when we were in the army and dreamed that a big ugly sergeant was kicking our pants for falling asleep on sentry duty and when we woke up, sure enough there was the sergeant kicking us right where we dreamed, only much harder.

LISTEN, WORLD!

SICK OF YOURSELF, sister? Feel you're shelved for keeps? Then just read September issue of Harper's Bazaar, and cast your eye over its new and likable list of writing as ever was done for the ones whose eyes are dragging and whose pride is all set for a comeback sale.

"THE ENERGETIC" Dad's what Esther Arthur calls her article, which is merely another name for Home Economist. Gives what's often and badly to single men in these United States and not the heart of Dear Congress. Inspired the American character. Jay's hang of course with that No. 1 Daughter Generator. Speed Demon and Gesture Wrapped in Feminine Flimsy.

Eat Mother Dinner gives her hint to the reader at the behind-the-scenes thriller. She's the writer of all those heartbreaking letters we've sent to her in our days and before. Ah, how Dear Esther Arthur put on Dear Reader's pan of hot lead and gave it a twist!

Variations On Tomato Juice Theme

By MARTHA LEE

A feature story devoted to the versatility of tomato juice yesterday.

She was right to do so. For the past few years tomato juice has been the favorite drink at cocktail parties. But it can be served in many delightful and unexpected ways to your benefit.

Tomato juice for cocktails is a commonplace. Everyone knows this. But it's a good idea to keep reminding ourselves of it, or they'll forget it.

We started that way, and then we ran across a recipe for tomato juice with cucumber. Why it never occurred to us before, we don't know. But it's a delicious combination. Cucumber comes from the same family as tomato. Both are vines.

For tomato juice with celery we added a little lemon juice to the tomato juice and celery. Then we added a little beef bouillon to the mixture. Delicious.

Then we tried tomato juice with cream cheese and minced onion. Delicious.

Then we tried tomato juice with cream cheese and minced onion. Marked sardines, minced parsley and tomato juice. Delicious.

Tomato cheese and onions.

A piece of lemon peel, a piece of onion, a piece of celery. We tried tomato juice with each of these. We tried tomato juice with all of them. We tried tomato juice with none of them.

Knit a Cocktail Blouse

KNIT EVENING sweaters were such a remarkably successful evening fashion last season that it's only natural the cocktail blouse knitted of metallic-strung yarn and it's very gay and flattering, as you can see. Knitting and purling simulate interesting draped folds . . . and the fit of the thing gives the new molded effect with a cutaway line. The same detail is carried out at the top of "shirred" sleeves. And the gilt zipper closing strikes an elegant note! Can be worn with a skirt for afternoon dress, or with a snaky crepe or full pleated chiffon skirt for evening. For knitting directions, write Annice Brink, Fashion Editor, Boston American, and please inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Join Clubs to Meet Right Type of Men

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am 18 years old and some folks think I'm good looking, but most times I'm forlorn at home by myself when I manage to get a date or two they won't last long but then they won't last long. I am a very quiet girl and most boys don't like that. I'm not the kind that likes to be [illegible] they say. Do you suggest [illegible] where to go?

Please tell me how I can get my self-confidence back. Because I'm so lonely.

CHRISTIE.

Of course there are many young men of the type you mention who are not have the best social habits. But there must be hundreds of the other kind, too. Judging from letters they write to me, there's a great many who are always want to get the most out of life.

The trouble is you're not meeting the right type of young man. If you feel sure you're not apt to meet the sort of young man you would like to have as a boy friend, join the group you mention or organize with some other friends by your own efforts. Of course, choose where you are apt to meet the type of young people you admire.

SHAMPOO TIP

Unless the hair is shampooed freshly don't spray perfume on it. The sweat glands of the scalp are active in the summer season; they produce chemicals that are not pleasing to the nostrils perfume makes this odor even more offensive.

Keep your favorite perfume in an atomizer. After the hair is shampooed, spray the back of the neck, arms and shoulders. The warm, fresh wind will hold light to the perfect fragrance.

Boston After Dark

BY GEORGE HOLLAND

THE PRODUCERS OF "HELLZAPOPPIN" have interpolated a popular song "No Wonder," written by a Boston boy, Buddy Bernier . . . And they say it's all right too . . . In event that another number is needed in the show's score, Messrs. Olsen and Johnson and Lee and J. J. Shubert, are advised to seat themselves around a piano and listen to a tune Sammy Fain has just completed . . . Fain has composed part of the show's score . . . But the writer of "I Can Dream, Can't I?" and "That Old Feeling," has a new torch song that is sure-fire . . .

GEORGE HOLLAND

It's title is "Who Blew Out the Flame?" . . . Two New York publishers are chasing it, and there's nothing in the Fain contract with the Shubert show that can make him give up the number . . . It might help make the Olsen and Johnson show a real smash . . . Talk around town when the first-nighters adjourned to the nightclubs was that the revue has the makings of a hit . . .

Bunny Berrigan, one of the world's foremost trumpeters, will follow Vincent Lopez at the Ritz-Carlton Roof next Monday . . . The Berrigan band is a "hot" aggregation . . . Berrigan, who is a full-blooded Celt, might laugh it off—but the chances are that he wouldn't—if he saw the placards in the Ritz lobby which are advertising him as "Benny" Berrigan . . .

The staff at the Ritz is evidently Benny Goodman-minded, which is understandable . . . The Goodman record for gross receipts is something for other bands to shoot at for several seasons to come . . . Maestro Lopez will play a Providence theater next week . . .

Speaking of songs, when Sophie Tucker comes to the Mayfair tomorrow night, the invited guests at the "preview" first-night, will get their greatest thrill from Sophie's rendition of "Week-end of a Private Secretary" . . . The material is cut to her measure.

Once Over Lightly:

At the Brockton Fair, Paul Whiteman is giving a grand show but Sally Rand (at Sunday night's show) failed to stir the audience out of a deep silence . . . New England audiences are notably unenthusiastic with applause for lightly-clad ladies featuring artistic dances . . . Although Hinda Wassau, who has her own following, is receiving a most cordial reception at the Old Howard . . . Ann Corio's box-office greeting at the same stand was the highest early season gross in seasons . . .

Eddie Duchin and Music Corporation, which books him, have had a serious tiff over the Sally Clark appearance with the Duchin band . . . Boston will see a startling novelty at one of the big stores Christmas week, and young Michael Todd, who produced "The Man From Cairo," is the lad who'll cash in . . . The novelty is called "Kute Kris Kringle," and is designed for children . . .

"Kute Kris Kringle" will be advertised as "three inches high—he talks, he lives, he's wonderful" . . . And so he is . . . The youngster will be able to talk with little Kris and tell him what they wish in the line of Christmas gifts . . . From coast to coast, the demand to lease the "Kute Kris Kringle" show has been so tremendous that a factory in Connecticut is being enlarged . . . Since September 1, more than $300,000 in orders have been received by Todd and his partner, Yurmi Stern . . .

It was Stern who backed Billy Rose in "The Casino de Paree," first Jewish theater-nightclub of the early Repeal days . . . When Todd finished a Boston engagement of "The Man From Cairo" last spring, the young producer was more than $20,000 out of pocket and borrowed his carfare to the Big Town.

A new ice-show at the Cocoanut Grove had its premiere last night and a "Snow White" number by the ensemble, a skating couple named Bob Duffy and Clair Seymone, and Robberts and White, are all very entertaining . . .

The Boston American Christmas Basket Fund will pick up $25 as a result of a golf match at Woodlawn today between those bitter rivals of the links, Ed Wyner of the Ritz, and Bill McKenna, the contractor . . . Wyner is betting $100 against $25 that he can take his opponent . . .

The deal on behalf of the Basket Fund was negotiated in the Melody Lounge of the Cocoanut Grove, when your reporter overheard the boys telling each other how good they are.

Admission to the Garden that night of harmony and swing will be $1, and if you like dancing, DON'T MISS.

It will be a long time before that much of grand dance music will be available in one auditorium in one night.

If you haven't entered for the jitterbug jamboree at Providence it's not too late. Get a couple in and go.

Joe Rubin, celebrated radio and night club maestro, is in charge of the preliminaries, and can readily be reached in his office in the Metropolitan Theater building.

PAUL WHITEMAN

Don't forget. October 24. Go and enjoy yourself, and help decide by your presence whether swing is king or King Vallee, the straight music of Vallee and his cohorts soon will be as dead as "Money Musk" or "The Virginia Reel."

Help the Boston Evening American Christmas Basket Fund, one of the most worthy charities in town.

And see a clash of music schools and bands that will be talked about for a long time to come.

Rude Vallee is harmony. Benny Goodman is swing.

When they talk about their subjects, other musicians listen. When they demonstrate, we'd all better listen.

Get organized for October 24! If you are a jitterbug and can do the shag, get in. If you just like to watch, there'll be plenty of seats.

And the cost of it all is $1.

U. S. Army Claims Best Anti-Tank Gun in World

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13 (AP)—General Malin Craig, Army chief of staff, said today that the army has developed new anti-tank guns improvements of foreign models, which would wipe out any enemy tank offensive.

He said he believed the American gun, a 37-millimeter mobile unit was unequalled in the world. With an extremely high muzzle velocity it has an overwhelming fire power at long range.

General Craig authorized the Army and Navy Register to announce that experiments have reached the point where production will be started soon. Experiments are continuing, he added, with a smaller weapon powerful enough to pierce tank armor and better for use at close quarters.

Despite the anti-tank gun it has evolved, the Army believes the tank has a recognized value as a rallying point for advancing infantry and is asking for more of them. Tank armor is to be increased to withstand anti-tank fire.

By HUGH E. BRADSHAW

One of the sorest spots on the American economic body responded nobly to the depression diet treatment. In brief, inventories showed a marked reduction in the first half of this year.

DESIRE TO RISE

The desire to rise is strong within the market. That one can not safely doubt after the performance yesterday—a really crucial day. Now if the war clouds are brought dispersed forces working for higher prices have an ideal opportunity to prove their case.

Everything appears to be in their favor and failure to take full advantage of such a chance will bring in a flood of selling orders.

Good News

New England's 1938 potato crop will be three per cent higher than the 10-year average according to figures released by the New England Crop Reporting service. The actual harvest is expected to be in the vicinity of 53,563,000 bushels.

NEW YORK, Sept. 13 (INS)—The explosion occurring in buying has become one of the outstanding features in American life recently.

It would be futile, however, from the viewpoint of businessmen, to the extent total of expenditures today on the civil work of government, which goods will have to be most important at the cost of both to each a workable solution rather than to win debating points. The consumer is always called upon to vindicate any agreement reached.

The culmination of the 1937 comeback clearly points to these [illegible]

Austen Lake:

About Braddock, Minus "Professional Attitude"

ORDINARILY YOUR SPORT WRITER is unstirred by the tragedies, mistakes and martyrdoms of the popular sport characters he is required to compose pieces about. Your sport author concerns himself with putting down one little word after another, and long years of toiling amid ringside frenzy, college stadia hysteria and roars beneath some roof coop have calloused your sport scribes into nerveless automatons. His worry is to condense occurrences into cold type. By gradual process he becomes merely an articulate media through which the news is filtered.

AUSTEN LAKE

Nor is this remarkable. Your surgeon can not be swayed by compassion for his patient lest he flinch as he snips and sews. Your lawyer is less of a humanist concerned with the virtue of his client than a technician engrossed in coloring the minds of the jury to the tint which he prefers. Nor is your artist, as he paints from the undraped female figure, troubled by the same emotions as those which excite the witnesses at some honky-tonk skin opera. I think this is called "professional attitude."

Still there are exceptions in the sport writing business. And now I find myself deploring Jimmy Braddock's decision to return to the fight wars for one last snatch at the ring riches which have always eluded his grasp. And what is there about Braddock which holds out a "professional attitude," which didn't dissolve it the night that an inferior brute named Max Schmeling was biffed over by a [illegible] named Joe Louis?

The Greater of Two Hates

I THINK I CAN TELL YOU. Braddock appeals to the imagination less as a common fist fighter than a symbol of faith, sacrifice and duty. Less than a month ago I sat on one of the red morocco barstools in his New York gulp & munch store while he said in his stilted speech how he had hated the ring before he quit.

He hated the screeching horde he had seen dimly beyond the lights as a sea of faces. He hated the sweet stench of liniments and the stale body odors. The hoarse croak of the announcer, the morbid leer of the press rows, the nervous pitch which sent him staggering, flailing and ducking. He hated those too.

But he had kept on because, more than that hate, he had hated the cellar apartment where his wife and three kids were forced to live, the meagre foods he could afford and the thin clothes he could provide. Of the two abominations, he recoiled most from the latter.

[illegible]

He Came Off the Floor

BRADDOCK IS ONE OF THE FEW [illegible] knew [illegible] Max Baer [illegible] to defend [illegible] fire stroke [illegible] year. He was [illegible] But he fought [illegible] "coming off the floor" [illegible] And when [illegible] And that's why we're [illegible] Braddock. The [illegible]

And now he is coming back. His restaurant has soaked up most of his ring earnings and is in receivership. The cost of being an ex-champion among the army of grifters, moochers and weasels that haunt his trail and the upkeep of his home exceeds his power to pay. So the papa in him is exhuming the pugilist.

Sucker vs. Humanist

AS WE TALKED THERE WERE BEES [illegible] lobby fifteen [illegible] played [illegible] personal [illegible] an object. [illegible] the fighter [illegible]

Sucker? Yes [illegible]

Pride [illegible] female [illegible] personal [illegible] Jimmy [illegible] young [illegible] to provide [illegible]

The public was sympathetic to Braddock in the ring. Out of it he lacked the swashbuckling charm of Jack Dempsey. The people love to shake the hand that rocked the world's most rugged jaws and stayed to buy Jack's beefsteaks. But sympathy hasn't marketed any thimbles and crusts for Braddock. There is no sales value in sympathy. So that is the way it is with Jim, and that is why, in our roundabout way, we who condense sport occurrences in cold type, see him minus "professional attitude."

There seems to be some softy in us all.

Held's 150 Tops Golf Qualifiers

OAKMONT COUNTRY CLUB, OAKMONT, Pa., Sept. 13 (INS)—The sun alternately shone down brightly and hid behind clouds that threatened more rain as 124 golfers today began slapping the ball around "terrible Oakmont's" soggy fairways on the second 18-hole swing of the 26-hole qualifying round in the national amateur championship.

Harlow Finds Guards

If Harvard's Dick Harlow were of the moaning type, he might well have been pardoned for shedding a few tears last June when graduation exercises robbed him of four guards including Jim Sullivan and Captain Russ Aiken.

Undaunted by the defection of Aiken along with seniors Joe Norman Chuck Klein and Bob Dawnes from the ranks of his guard squad Harlow calmly went about his business in spring practice confident in his ability to turn out at least two plenty fair prospects for this important position.

Came April and Mr. Harlow amazed his listeners by announcing

Damon Runyon writes "The Brighter Side" every day in the Boston American

MR. BOSTON

Pro Football on Menu to Stay | Game Has Great Weather Hazard

By JACK CONWAY

PROFESSIONAL football teams and College All-Stars have monopolized the rights to gridiron pre-views. Now that the fans in Chicago and in New York have had their pre-season presentations it is fitting that Boston should also have a glimpse at the game Gil Dobie insists is still a Chinese puzzle.

Mr. Boston

The Shamrocks and the College All-Stars will offer the Boston performance of "Modern Football" at Fenway Park tomorrow night under the floodlights. The Rehabilitation Department of the American Legion will share in the gate receipts. I am told that the veterans have already sold $12,000 worth of tickets which should be pleasing news to the management of the Shamrocks which is financing the game.

These football games between professional football clubs and College All-Stars usually have an overhead of $10,000 to $12,000. There is a $5000 to $6000 expense for the professional club, while the transportation and expense tabs of the College All-Stars will reach $6000.

These games are so popular with some of the former college greats that they pass away the fall season going from Chicago to New York and then to Boston. The players travel in style, and live at the best hotels, while they are advanced money for their personal expenses.

Tennis players and the golf stars have been indulging in such joy rides for years, and one must admit they do not take as much physical punishment as the football heroes. In view of this it would be unfair to condemn the college football players.

The public appears to like these kind of football shows judging from the large crowds that attended the clashes in Chicago and in New York. I do not believe the public has any objections to the players receiving fat expense accounts.

Persons who attend football games have never been able to understand why a professional boxer like Max Schmeling should be paid $180,000 for receiving a few punches from Joe Louis, while a sturdy college gridiron star should be trampled on and have his ears pinned back for the everlasting prestige of dear old Alma Mater.

Fans Eager to See Gridiron Clash

APART FROM the college atmosphere, a top football game is promised at Fenway Park tomorrow night. I believe people are getting a bit tired of baseball, golf, tennis, racing and the other summer sports, and will get a thrill out of seeing 22 perfectly conditioned young men trying to tear each other apart.

Of course some of the leaders in football still contend that modern football is a game of skill and science. This may be true up to a certain point, but when a couple of bulky linesmen clash or two rival backs meet head on, I'll put my money on the one who possesses the greater amount of primitive instinct.

I never cared much for athletes who started thinking about skill and science when somebody slammed them on the jaw. A well delivered right hand punch has quite a scientific as well as physical advantage over anything else you may be able to do under such conditions.

Professional Football Firmly Established

PROFESSIONAL football has passed the experimental stage and is established as a regular fall feature. Last fall the New York Giants, Washington Redskins and Green Packers made huge profits. The success of George Marshall's Redskins in Washington was one of the most surprising features of the season. Marshall took his Redskins and moved them from Boston to Washington when he decided they were not appreciated by the public and the press.

The Shamrocks have profited as a result of the departure of the Redskins. This year the management of the Shamrocks intends to play exhibition games with clubs like the Chicago Bears and Pittsburgh, and believes that this type of football will appeal more to the public than would clashes in a secondary league.

There is little chance of the Shamrocks succeeding in their effort to arrange a game with the Redskins. George Marshall has no desire to show his club in Boston. Even the possibility that he might get $10,000 as his share of the gate receipts does not appeal to Marshall.

In time I look for major league football to return to Boston, and the promoter will probably benefit as a result of the pioneering work done by Marshall and by Col. Bob McKirdy, who financed the first pro-

Start 'Hole-in-One' Monday

Sixth Annual Tourney Nears Opening

Everything is set for the grand opening of the sixth annual Boston Evening American-Sunday Advertiser Hole-in-One tournament next Monday at Franklin Park.

Hundreds of men and women, young and old, good golfers and notorious duffers, have sent in their entries, and the early rush indicates a new record entry list.

Entries will be accepted until the curtain falls on this colorful classic of combined skill and luck at Franklin Park's "19th hole."

The tee for the Hole-In-One is close by the clubhouse at Franklin Park, and the shot is 120 yards on a specially constructed "blind" hole with the cup hidden from view.

Superintendent Joseph Howe has had men working on the tee and the green for a week and says he's ready for the annual invasion.

Each entrant is allowed five shots at the cup. A circle ten feet wide is drawn around the flag, and all shots within this "magic circle" are measured.

If there is no Hole-In-One, the nearest shots will carry off the attractive prizes in both men's and women's divisions.

Send your entry now to the Hole-In-One Editor, Boston Evening American, 5 Winthrop square, Boston.

Marblehead Bound

PORT ARTHUR, Tex., Sept. 12 (INS)—Eighteen members of Port Arthur High School's roving football squad, chaperoned by Coaches Tom Dennis and Johnny Kitchen, left today for Marblehead, Mass., where they hope to gain their third straight intersectional victory.

The game will be the season opener for Port Arthur. Last year the Yellow Jackets defeated Marblehead in a game at Port Arthur, 24 to 0.

Bumpus Seeks Win At Newmarket

NEWMARKET, N. H., Sept. 12—"Bumpy" Bumpus, Bay State's dare devil, who hopes to rout the jinx which has followed him into almost every race this year, will be back for the 20-mile whirl at the Speedway here Sunday.

In a recent race Bumpus escaped serious injury when his high powered car travelling at a torrid pace collided with another, yet Bumpus had his car ready for a race three days later.

Boys Like Downes

103 OUT AT BROOKLINE

Although they will be pitted against the Cubs, who are right on the heels of the Pirates in the race for the National League pennant, he Bees are confident that they'll close in on the first division in this series . . . The Red Sox are also up against some tough opposition for they open their last Western trip with the Tigers, who, of late, have been the most consistent winners in the A. L. . . . Coach Joe McKenney will work out his All Stars, who are to meet the Shamrocks tomorrow night at Fenway Park at the Belmont Town Field. Incidentally, the All Stars are in fine fettle for their battle with the pros. They were all at Feddie School for a fortnight training for the game with the New York Giants. Unlike Andy Kerr, Coach McKenney's offense will be, for the most part, aerial thrusts, which will delight the fans . . . Pete Noonan, the old Holy Cross catcher, and who later played under Connie Mack, is at home visiting his pal Walter Seaver at the Lenox. Pete declares he can still hit Tom Keady. Who couldn't? . . . Harry Downes has 103 candidates out for football at Brookline High. That's more than one tenth of the boys enrolled . . . Eddie Onslow, who piloted the Hartford Bees into the Eastern League playoffs, left for his home in Ohio today . . . Mortimer "Red" Buckley, the all-scholastic hockey player, has entered Hebron . . . If the Philadelphia fans appreciate the broadcasting of baseball games they are too modest to admit it. Last Sunday was Radio Appreciation Day at Shibe Park, where the Bees and the Phillies played a doubleheader, with Al Schacht as an added attraction. But only 2005 turned out and it's safe to say that probably fifty per cent were not radio fans but regular Sunday customers . . . The Bees beat three major league clubs to the services of Carvill Rowell, the Dayton second baseman, who Rudy Hutzwitt believes is ready for big time baseball, despite the fact that he has just finished his first full season as an infielder . . . Now, it's rumored that Bill Harridge's telegram suspending Billy Werber was delivered at Fenway Park before the game that the former Red Sox won with a home run for the Athletics . . . The Murphy estate, which owns Baker Bowl in Philly, will consummate a deal for the sale of that property within a few days . . . Politics should never be allowed to enter school athletics. They'll never "jell" which the City of Cambridge will soon discover to its sorrow.

Wrigley May Sell Cubs

The Cardinals will pluck their new manager from one of their farms; not from the majors . . . A prominent southern collitch (which is doing a football comeback) has a "buck-a-month club" with more than 1000 old grads shooting in a potato every 30 days to help take care of poor footballers.

We hear that unless Phil Wrigley can buy a chain of minor league ball clubs right quick he's going to put the Cubs on the market and chuck the whole thing . . . The Pirates aren't accepting World Series reservations yet, but the Pittsburgh hotels are.

Correction: The West Virginia alumni are not putting up the dough for that football training camp. A private individual, who has loads of it, is footing the bills which is quite all right with the West Virginia alumni) . . . A big Pacific Coast school wanted Wallace Wade real bad, but when they learned how much Wade is getting at Duke they cancelled the wire.

Oddity: Pitcher Hutchinson of Seattle won his 19th game of the season on his 19th birthday . . . Greenberg again is pulling ahead of the old Bam's 1927 home run record, but we'll still bet he doesn't break it.

You'll have to tap four jacks to beat Michigan State this year. In the Spartan backfield will be Jack Pingel, Jack Budinski, Jack Amon and Jack Koernke, Jr. . . . Young Mr. Gil Hunt can step right up here and take a bow.

Joe Jacobs and Joe Gould have gone in together to break Mike Jacob's fistic monopoly. Mike merely said: "Pay no attention to 'em—they're just a couple of guys named Joe" . . . The Washington Senators have a real presidential outfielder in Taft Wright and George Washington Case . . . Al Schacht has a new football act which calls for six stooges . . . Members of the crack Long Island basketball team, now touring Puerto Rico, spend their off hours teaching the boys and girls how to do the Big Apple.

Frisch

St. Louis Purge

By "Bugs" Baer

(Copyright, 1938, by International News Service)

Frankie Frisch is retreating all along the line today. He drops from sixth place to Brooklyn. On the way home he travels through Philadelphia.

Frank did much better in St. Louis than his old boss and boyhood hero John McGraw did. On August 19, 1900, Pat Tebeau resigned as manager of the St. Louis team and bought a saloon in order to be closer to the ballplayers. Before quitting Pat had had signed two ex-managers for his outfit. One was Donovan of Pittsburgh and the other John McGraw of Baltimore. Neither one played enough to keep the wolf away from the turnstiles.

Baltimore let McGraw, Wilbert Robinson and Bill Keister all go for about what unclaimed bundles bring at a dead letter sale in the old postoffice building.

The American League started its dirty work long before it came to the crossroads . . . It cajoled McGraw with its store clothes and city ways and in 1901 John, Wilbert and Bill Keister jumped back to Baltimore taking along with them a fellow named Mike Donlin. The bitter tea of General Yen was sweetened by a yen for more sugar.

Frisch has had some illustrious predecessors managing or trying to manage the St. Louis mob. Miller Huggins, Roger Bresnahan, Charles Comiskey, Arlie Latham and the great Tim Hurst all took whacks at the team when it laid back all summer like a bum in a barber chair.

We see that Bill Corum nominates Frisch for night manager of the Brooklyns. The best Frank can do there is to put in bingo and lower the turnstiles to trap the short guys.

Frank has had one of baseball's great careers and he can taper off in Brooklyn without entirely breaking the habit. Why doesn't somebody try kindness over there? After all, you can kick a sawdust doll around too much.

In the old days when a manager left a town he took most of the team with him. Frank has no intention of doing St. Louis that favor.

After McGraw had his argument with Ban Johnson on July 19, 1902, and jumped Baltimore for the last time, he cam to New York bringing Joe McGinnity, Jack Cronin, Roger Bresnahan and big Dan McGann. It seems that Ban forgot to search John.

We do not agree with Corum in sending Sadie Thompson back to San Francisco or Frisch to Brooklyn. Frankie has earned a rest. But not that much.

Frisch has worked hard, played brilliantly and fought all the way. He has saved his money and has plenty of crumbs in the cookie jar. If he wants to haunt the third base line in Brooklyn, New York or any other place that's his business. But it seems too much like hollering at hosses in a burning barn. We have never advised anybody to quit since Johnny Dundee turned on us and asked, "Why don't you?"

Louis' Foot in Cast

CHICAGO, Sept. 13 (INS)—Joe Louis, world's heavyweight champion, rested in his South Side home today, his right foot in a cast. He was told to keep off his feet for three weeks.

Louis tore a ligament in the foot sliding in a softball game.

Watch Out for Lions

By International News Photograph Service

They are saying the real reason the Cardinals gave Frankie Frisch the gate is that $17,500 salary tag . . . on top of a losing financial season for the chain gang system.

If Frisch pilots the Dodgers, Leo Durocher, Frisch's No. 1 enemy, must go.

Strangely enough, nobody is giving Babe Ruth a tumble . . . although as a Dodger coach . . . He is in on the ground floor.

Gene Mako . . . Don Budge's underrated doubles pal . . . showed himself no slouch as a singles player . . . when he upset Jugoslavian ace Franjo Puncec in the nationals.

National League club owners will have a strong argument against salary increases . . . because not more than seven in the whole league will drive in more than 100 runs this semester . . . but at least twenty will reach the century mark in the American.

Pals are worried about Columbia's Lou Little . . . believing something must be the matter with him . . . for Lachrymose Lou is now Laughing Lou . . . an dis telling intimates Columbia's undermanned gridiron team will shock some of the favored fry this fall.

The Broadway books are laying 2 to 1 against Hank Greenberg busting Babe Ruth's home run record . . . But only 8 to 5 that Jimmy Foxx doesn't break Lou Gehrig's 184 runs batted in mark . . . Hank hit No. 50 yesterday, while the Tigers were beating the White Sox 4-3 . . . in the lone game of the day . . .

JOHNNY VANDER MEER

Grid experts believe no Eastern team will go undefeated this coming season . . . Cornell and Dartmouth are said to be well loaded . . . and Jimmy Crowley . . . minus his seven blocks of Fordham granite . . . still expects to hold the Pitt Panthers in check for the fourth straight year.

Prize rookies of the year . . . Johnny Vander Meer and Frank McCormick, Reds . . . Johnny Rizzo and Bob Klinger, Pirates . . . Joe Gordon, Yanks, and Ken Keltner, Indians . . . Prize bust, Cliff Melton, Giants.

If Jimmy Phipps is raised to 16 goals next year . . . as seems likely . . . the U. S. four will have the highest possible team handicap . . . 40 goals . . . for Tommy Hitchcock, Stew Iglehart and Cecil Smith . . . all are listed at the maximum 10-goal figure.

None of the four is a back . . . so one of them may be converted for the international matches . . . probably Hitchcock . . . who can do anything on a polo field . . . and do it superbly.

Elimination Bouts For Armstrong Title

NEW YORK, Sept. 13 (INS)—The New York State Athletic Association learned officially today that dusky Harry Armstrong, champion of the lightweight, welterweight and featherweight boxing divisions has abandoned the latter title.

The commission is expected to declare that an elimination tourney is in order, thus ignoring the clamor raised by managers who wanted the title conferred upon their "boys" without the necessity of fighting it out in the ring.

Washington Waits Record Primary

SEATTLE, Wash., Sept. 13 (AP)—A right and left-wing Democratic cleavage, dissension over proposed Republican ballot-crossing and competition for local nominations stirred interest in Washington state's primary today, causing observers to forecast a record 400,000 "off-year" vote.

Voters were to choose candidates for one U. S. senatorial post, six congressional positions, the state legislature, three Supreme Court jobs and local offices.

Dempsey Reviews Field

Hostak Only Great White Fighter

By EDWARD W. COCHRANE
International News Service Sports Writer

CHICAGO, Sept. 13 (INS)—The black dynasty of pugilism is destined to reign for several years unmolested.

Josephus Louis, heavyweight king, will rest peacefully on his throne until some new man, now unheard of, is developed.

There are just two great fighters outside of Louis now—Al Hostak, sensational Seattle youngster, who holds the middleweight crown, and homicide Henry Armstrong, boss of the featherweight, lightweight and welterweight divisions.

BARLUND CAN'T HIT

That, customers, is the quite expert opinion of William Harrison Dempsey, former heavyweight king.

"There are no challengers worthy of mention," he said. "Gunnar Barlund may be the best. Can't hit much, an' a man who can't hit won't become champion. Tony Galento, the beer salesman, might beat Barlund.

"Max Baer can't be brought back. The public isn't that silly. Wouldn't stand for him. Pastor can't hit. That eliminates him. Barlund probably will beat him unless he tags and runs. No one wants to see that kind of a fighter."

"The boxing game must have a new challenger—a young fellow who never has been heard of, who will come along fast and be a great white champion. That is the way we have always developed champions.

"Go down the line and you will see. Jim Corbett was a young bank clerk when they looked for a foe for John L. Sullivan. Bob Fitzsimmons came from Australia. Jim Jeffries was a sparring partner and suddenly became champion.

"Jess Willard was a hack driver. Forty guys were trying to get to the top when out of Kansas came Willard and soon passed them all. Then I came along from Colorado.

"Gene Tunney was a marine, and the first thing any one knew he was tops. So it was with Louis. Up he came like a skyrocket out of the amateurs to become king.

"The Barlunds, Galentos, Pastors and all the rest of them today are like a flock of ambitious boxers who were around when all these men passed them and reached the top.

"That will happen again. Just who it will be no one knows. But there is no challenger in sight now who can do it."

The "Ol' Man o' Manassa" was loud in his praise of Hostak and Armstrong.

"They are the best in the world today. Hostak is a great fighter and a great puncher. He is a sensation and will hold on a long time. Takes perfect care of himself and knows how to fight.

"Armstrong is the best at his weight. Too bad either of them is not big enough to box Louis. Would beat him possibly. Hostak may grow some, but not enough to be a great heavyweight. Just a great middleweight."

fessional football club to ever show here. The pioneers in any professional sport usually suffer losses, but they eventually make things easy for some young men with enthusiasm and a yen for a particularly athletic pastime.

Football's Weather Gamble

PROFESSIONAL football clubs only play a limited number of games, and they are usually staged on Sunday afternoons. This has given professional football a tremendous weather hazard. If the day is clear and fairly warm, the crowd may run as high as 40,000 to 60,000 as has happened frequently in New York and in Chicago. But if the day is cold and there is rain the promoters invariably lose money.

College football also has a certain weather hazard, but it isn't as great as in professional football. Tickets for the major college games are usually sold in advance, and the old grads and the student body laugh at the elements if it comes up rain.

There are a few tickets turned back to the athletic departments in the event of rain, but the loss from this is only slight.

Perhaps it is the ladies who insist that the men folks attend these college games even when it rains. When a girl has a date with her boy friend, she isn't going to permit a rain storm to cancel it even though it may also wash away the rouge from her pretty face.
